successful authors and leadership scholars have come together with a common theme: new times call for new leadership. Their collective voice calls for a fundamental transformation in the way we lead, the way we see leaders, the way we allow ourselves to be led, and how we think about leadership. Topics include difficult issues and challenging times, the leader's new responsibility, leadership in an era of paradox, new thinking for new leaders, and implementing new leadership contributions by such successful authors on the subject of new leadership as Warren Bennis, leaders and on becoming a leader, Margaret Wheatley, leadership and the new science, James Autry, love, profit, and work-life, Max DePree, leadership is an art, and leadership jazz, and Ann Morrison, the new leaders and breaking the glass ceiling. Highlight this rich collection of essays, which is edited by John Renssch, business futurist and author of Getting to the Better Future. This book was created for the individual who recognizes that he or she could be doing more to improve or even transform their own role in their organizations or their organization's role in the world. Whether the reader is a middle manager, a CEO, a sales rep, or an accountant, he or she will find incredible value from the treasure chest of ideas shared by these authors.

The military conquest of the prairie is a study on the final wars on the prairie from the Native American perspective. When the reservation system took hold, about one third of tribes stayed permanently there, one third during the harsh winter months, and the last third remained on what the government termed unceded territory, which Native Americans had the right to occupy by treaty. For the federal government, it was completely unacceptable that some Indians refused to submit to its authority. Both the Red River War (1874-75) in the south and the Great Sioux War (1876-77) in the north were the direct result of federal violation of treaties and agreements. At issue was the one-sided violence against free-roaming tribes that were trying to maintain their old way of life, at the heart of which was avoidance of intermingling with white men, contrary to the expectations of the government. And indeed, to most historical accounts, the Native Americans were winning on the battlefields with clear conceptions of strategy and tactics. They only laid down their arms when their reservation was secured on their homeland, thus providing their preferred living space and enabling them to continue their way of life in security. But white man perfidy and governmental double-cross were the order of the day. The federal government found it intolerable that what it termed savages should be able to determine their own future. Vicious attacks were initiated in order to stamp out tribalism.

resulting in driving the us aboriginal population almost to extinction analysis of these events is discussed in light of the passing of the dawes act in 1887 that provided for breaking up the reservations to the indian reorganization act of 1934 that gave a semblance of justice to native americans
